

1840-50

Dear Mr. Silke.

Can you remember whether Reuter's note to you, and which I enclose, a copy was written in 1819 or 1820. In the autumn of 1819 perhaps a lodging in London in which he only stayed two days & returned to Hamburg.
My impression is that he wrote this to you the following year after Judge had gone back to America, after his last visit here.

I hope the little book will be out within a month.

Is very truly
Your friend,
Frank Miles,

Oh Lada is still at Bath, writing furiously & sending you letters every week in the Examiner & other papers printed a volume of mixed prose & verse, full of beauty, which gives the best account of his life: his life is still this a life of incredible things & of course he spends a whole lifetime on himself. --- and I I am sure of those surging depths of confusion just like the last century. I believe: to people indefinitely, but this over-grad common sense is still probably, here the materials of a good colony in the future & the hopes of the present for people and helpfully result in profits to others coming later into the field. I am sure you & I are of colonialists.
- But 2, on your old example, you cannot do better.
Then write them to me. By wife you are at last
- 1000 to 1000 - God bless you, dear hearts,
- I am sure of the future of the world, I am sure and in question of the world. I am sure of the future
- I am sure of the future of the world, I am sure of the future
